Title: ACCESSMAP: designing a flexible system for the collection of feedback in experiencing accessibility to media, entertainment and cultural events.

Offer description:

The research is centred on designing a project for the implementation of a flexible tool to be used to evaluate accessible experiences in the contexts of media, live entertainment and cultural events in general. From a methodological point of view, it will be based on the triangulation of different parameters, such as users' preferences, satisfaction, immersion and engagement, cognitive effort, happiness, wellbeing, emotional response, sense of belonging, participation, depending on the media or event to be analysed in terms of its reception. The idea is to allow researchers but also companies and other subjects to have a digital but flexible tool, certainly accessible to persons with different abilities. After designing the system, future research will aim at implementing, testing and possibly registering it. The research is part of the activities included in Task 2.2 (WP2) of the Safina-Vitality project and contributes to the achievement of the project objectives.
