Educational goals

The course in International, European and Comparative Legal Studies (IECoLS) aims to provide students with an all-round legal education along with a strong international and comparative perspective and steady focus on legal issues globally.
Classes are delivered in English in order to offer students a transnational approach to law, opening up the opportunity to pursue their career abroad.
The course structure contributes to the education of law experts with a sound knowledge of Western law, and a privileged point of observation on Chinese law and economics, thanks to specific modules on the latter issues. Such professionals will have the skills to operate effectively in an international work context, and be ready to further study in Italy and abroad, both in the legal and non-legal area, on courses designed to develop specialty skills, as well as in-depth geographical awareness.
